Biographical Sketch:

Francesca Happé is Professor in Cognitive Neuroscience at the MRC Social, Genetic and Developmental Psychiatry Centre at the Institute of Psychiatry (King's College London). She studied Experimental Psychology at Oxford, and did her PhD on autism at UCL under the supervision of Prof Uta Frith. Her research interests centre on autism and Asperger Syndrome. She has conducted research into the nature of the social and communication problems in these conditions, and their possible basis in impairments of 'theory of mind'. She is also actively engaged in studies of abilities and assets in people with autism, and their relation to detail-focused perceptual and cognitive style ('weak central coherence'). As well as cognitive methods, her research involves functional imaging studies, exploration of acquired brain lesions and, most recently, behaviour genetic methods. Her research has been supported by the Medical Research Council, the Economic and Social research Council and the Wellcome Trust. The British Psychological Society awarded her the Spearman Medal, and the Experimental Psychology Society named her as the recipient of the 7th EPS Prize.
