Cynthia A. Graham, Ph.D.

Member, Sexual and Gender Identity Disorders Work Group

Research Tutor, Oxford Doctoral Course in Clinical Psychology

Research Fellow, The Kinsey Institute for Research in Sex, Gender, and Reproduction

Dr. Graham is currently a Research Tutor on the Oxford Doctoral Course in Clinical Psychology, a Research Fellow at the Kinsey Institute for Research in Sex, Gender, and Reproduction, and a visiting Research Fellow at the Rural Center for AIDS/STD Prevention, Indiana University. She was recently appointed Editor-in-Chief of The Journal of Sex Research and is an editorial board member for the Journal of Sex and Marital Therapy and the International Journal of Sexual Health. She is a Chartered Psychologist and an Associate Fellow of the British Psychological Society. Dr Graham has published over 75 articles and book chapters on a range of topics including sexual problems, methodological issues in recall data on sexual behavior, gender differences in sexuality, the relationship between mood and sexuality, factors affecting sexual arousal in women, and asexuality. A longstanding research interest has been the effects of hormonal contraceptives on mood and sexuality in women and she has carried out some of the few placebo-controlled studies in this area.

Cynthia obtained her Master's degree from the University of Glasgow, Scotland and her Ph.D. in 1990 from McGill University. From 1996-2004 she was an Assistant Professor at Indiana University. She was also Director of Graduate Education at the Kinsey Institute from 1999-2004 and a co-organizer of the Kinsey Institute Summer Institute Programs on high-risk sexual behavior.
