Biographical Sketch:

Dr. Allan I. Pack is currently a Professor of Medicine, Director of the Center for Sleep and Respiratory Neurobiology and Chief of the Division of Sleep Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Pack’s current major research focus is sleep and its disorders, in particular sleep apnea. Dr. Pack has studied the basic neurobiological processes which facilitate apnea during sleep. Dr. Pack has an active program of patient-oriented research. He has studied outcomes of sleep apnea, adherence to therapy, and has recently completed large studies on prevalence of sleep apnea in commercial drivers and on risk factors for excessive sleepiness in older adults, including sleep apnea. Dr. Pack has extended his interest recently and has begun to study the molecular mechanisms of sleepiness and the genetics of sleep disorders. Sleepiness is a common consequence of sleep apnea. He is utilizing a functional genomics approach. He is currently doing studies in rodents, Drosophila and humans. He has received a number of awards for his activities including the Nathaniel Kleitman Award and the William C. Dement Academic Achievement Award from the American Academy of Sleep Medicine. He has also recently been elected to the Association of American Physicians.
